

Former Inmate Brings Off Broadway Play Back to Otisville Where It All Began

March 24, 2015

Former Otisville Correctional Facility inmate, Joseph Assadourian, will bring his one man play "The Bullpen" back to the correctional facility where he first performed the show. On March 26th, Assadourian will perform the play for current inmates at Otisville and take questions following the performance. The performance will take place a year and a half after Assadourian was paroled. The play "The Bullpen" has received numerous accolades as an Off Broadway Play in New York City including a New York Times critic calling the play "wildly funny".
